Well, the weather recently has been ghastly! I do have a wonderful Queen sized shelter in the field that I can go into when the weather is unbearable. I have found that the sheep, who also share the field with me, are equally unimpressed with getting wet! They also like to use the shelter, so it can get quite cosy in there.

When I'm in my field I try and have a jolly good roll for sheer enjoyment and to also help my coat develop natural oils which in turn provide me with a natural waterproofing and glossy shine. I do try and get mud everywhere mainly because I know how much the equine team enjoy their daily grooming challenge! I don't particularly like it when it rains and my hair gets wet, so I rub my head on the hay net to dry off before bedtime.

Now winter is here my fields gets very muddy and to allow my legs the chance to suitably dry off I am enjoying a change in my routine by being stabled overnight and then out with my friends during the day. My stable is next to my friends Bess and Lacey. I also have Barney the goat opposite me and we all enjoy being snug and dry overnight.

*Until next time,
Tinkerbelle X*
